Hotels4Truckers.com Helps Truck Drivers Find Accommodations

TAYLOR, MI – A new website developed and launched by a trucking industry veteran aims to help semi-truck drivers find great hotels that have the parking capacity to handle large trailers.

The website, Hotels4Truckers.com, provides information on trucker-friendly motels, hotels and other lodging across the United States, helping drivers avoid having to spend their nights in the sleeper cabs of their rigs.

“As any trucker knows all too well, it can be nearly impossible to find a hotel that can accommodate a 75-foot trailer, especially on short notice,” said Dan Fuller, the company’s president and founder. “This fills a major need in the trucking industry, as it allows drivers to be more rested and live a more comfortable lifestyle on the road, while decreasing idling times.”

In addition to information on accommodations, Hotels4Truckers.com also provides special discount rates for its members at hotels nationwide. Visitors to the website can search for hotels based on location, including by city and state or by zip code. It’s free to use for drivers, and for just $10 per year, users can receive up to 20 percent discounts from thousands of hotels.

Another one of the company’s goals includes changing the stereotypical image of disheveled, untidy and crass truckers. Instead, Fuller hopes that people will begin to realize that most truck drivers are industry professionals who enjoy comfort and cleanliness, and who take their careers very seriously.

“We feel that the image of truck drivers has mostly been a negative one over the past several decades, and we want to show people that these perceptions are not reality,” Fuller said. “Just like any other professional, semi-truck drivers would much prefer to sleep in a comfortable, clean hotel room than in their sleeper.”

Hotels4Truckers.com, which launched on Jan. 27, also serves as a great resource for bus drivers and families on vacation who are towing boats or trailers. For more information, visit <http://www.Hotels4Truckers.com>.
